GETTING CONSENT

Getting consent doesn’t have to be awkward! Be prepared. Practice these questions:

“I’d really like to _____(activity) – Would you be into that?”

“I’m really interested in doing . . . with you. Do you want to do that?”

“I really want this to be good for you… What do you like?”

AT COLLEGE

Rates of experiencing sexual assault and misconduct were highest among those identifying as transgender, genderqueer, non-conforming, questioning and as a gender not listed on the survey (TGQN).

Those identifying as TGQN had the highest rates of acts involving penetration by force or incapacitation.
